The information we gather and how we use it

We gather two types of information about the users of our site: non-personally identifiable and personally identifiable information. When visitors come to our site, we may collect and aggregate non-personally identifiable information indicating, among other things, which pages were visited, the order in which they were visited, and which hyperlinks were clicked. Collecting such information involves the logging of IP addresses, operating system and browser software used by each visitor to the site. Although such information is not personally identifiable, we can determine from the IP address a visitor's Internet Service Provider and the geographic location of his or her point of connectivity.

The non-personally identifiable information we collect helps us, among other things, to monitor our internal operations, improve our services, identify the most popular areas of our site and determine the effectiveness of our services and promotional activities. It also helps us make available quality, more useful online services by performing statistical analyses of the collective characteristics and behavior of the users of our site, and by measuring demographics and interests regarding specific areas of our site. We provide statistical information based on this data to advertisers, affiliates, and other current and potential promotional partners.

We may also use cookies which allow us to serve visitors of our site better and more efficiently. Cookies are small text files placed on a visitor's computer's hard drive if permitted by the browser. Cookies, among other things, make it easier for users to access our site and services, and help us track the pages that visitors go to, determine the length of time visitors spend at any particular area of the site, and track the services visitors choose to use. Cookies are only read by the server that placed them, and are unable to read data from hard disks, execute any code, send you viruses or destroy your files. For information on how and whether cookies will be accepted by your web browser, please refer to the documentation accompanying your browser.

We do not collect any information that personally identifies you unless you knowingly and willingly provide it. When we ask for information that personally identifies you, we do so explicitly. For example, when registering for a personal account, we require that you provide us with certain personally identifiable information ranging from basic contact information to payment information. Also, you have the option to complete a survey about yourself, your interests and other information about yourself that will help us, our promotional partners and advertisers offer you value-added products and services which we believe will be of interest to you.

You may choose to “opt out” of receiving promotional materials not directly related to services provided by us and our affiliates, advertisers, or other business partners. If you do not opt out of receiving such promotional materials, we reserve the right to share any personally identifiable registration information regarding you to third parties who provide goods or services that we believe may be of interest to you. If you decide that you would like to discontinue receiving promotional information from such third parties, please contact those third parties directly, or contact us at and we will advise such third parties that you wish to discontinue receiving their promotional information. Note, however, that we cannot and do not assume any responsibility for any actions or omissions of third parties, including the manner in which they use information received either from The Clinician Exchange or independently.

We use personally identifiable information to operate our site, and we may occasionally inform you of new features, services, promotions and products available on this site offered by us and our promotional partners. We limit our own e-mail solicitations to those registered users who have not opted out of receiving such communications. Our solicitations are limited in that they, among other things, will clearly indicate the originator of the e-mail and provide the customer with a method of opting out of receiving future communications of a similar nature. If you decide that you would like to discontinue receiving information from us about new features, services, promotions and products, please contact us at info@theclinx.com

We reserve the right to disclose information contained within our access logs concerning any user as we reasonably feel is necessary to protect our systems or business. Specifically, but without limitation, we reserve the right to disclose such when a user is in violation of our Terms of Use or other published guidelines, or if a user partakes (or is reasonably suspected of partaking) in any illegal activity, even without a subpoena, warrant, or other court order, and to disclose such information in response to court and governmental orders, civil subpoenas, discovery requests, and as otherwise required by law. We cooperate with law enforcement agencies in identifying those who may be using our servers or services for illegal activities. We also reserve the right to report any suspected illegal activity to law enforcement for investigation or prosecution, or to suspend or terminate your membership in connection with any suspected illegal activity.

We may ask you to provide feedback or testimonials related to your experience using our website. Your response is optional, and if you do respond we reserve the right to display your response on our website, or in any advertising material presented in any medium. We also reserve the right to display on our website any photographs you upload to your profile, even after you have cancelled your subscription or profile, or withdrawn the photographs from your profile.

In using your feedback, testimonials and/or photographs, we will not reveal any of your personal identification information, other than your first name.
